

Yesterday was an effective day with lots of debates, unmoderated caucuses, working papers and high competition which delegates were trying to make political blocks. Delegates worked really hard in order to have a perfect working paper while the organisation team organizes an enjoyable and happy day for the participants. Organisation team prepared EuroAsia Wall for participants which all members of this conference can write down how they feel about EuroAsia 2015. If you haven't seen this wall yet, you can find it in the same building which General Assembly Committees were placed. At the end of this tiring day, with a good quality of music delegates enjoyed their night. // Övgü Nalbantoğlu

MUNTRibune

--When did you start your MUN career?

First, I attended one in high school but I really started in university. I served as delegate, chairperson, USG, PR member, editor and director of crisis

--What are your future plans in MUN?

I wish to finish in my last year in university what I start in my first year in there.

--What would be missing in your life without MUN?

Most probably my friends, I met hundreds of people in MUN conferences. Also, MUN opened my horizon, I cannot imagine any activity which could do this in such a little time.

--What are your advices to the fresh MUNers?

Attend as many conferences as you can. You may not find an opportunity in future times. And don't be in a rush for serving different positions except delegate because you will miss it a lot. Also, enjoy every moment.

--What are the contributions of MUN to you?

Of course the improvement of English. And I learned crisis management. These 4 days are a great opportunity to test yourself in being formal and professional before you get a job.

After the yesterday's interview with our lovely DG, CEMRE AKSU, let's familiarise "A Wonderful Mind": DAMLA MANAV

COMMITTEE DIVIDED

Today the Committee on the Bolshevik Revolution came together and started its working. In the committee there existed 2 blocks; the Bolsheviks including Stalin under the leadership of Lenin and the Provisional Government. Both sides claiming the desire and capacity they had were higher than the other one had in order to get Russia and Russian people out of the underwhelming and still worsening conjuncture discussed on what to do and what kind of precautions to take. The discussion let them come to the point to focus on the questions like whether Russia would continue the World War 1 or not, what the new policies were to be and be taken by whom, and the main goals of the rebellions and their effects on the future of the country and people's living within its boundaries. // Orhun Bayraktar

NATURAL RESOURCES

It was a long and tiring day for Legal committee regarding the hard work and successful debates they did. Prevention of shared natural resources like water, air, wind where boundaries of two States intersect were discussed. The second topic was about pollution. The majority supported that the idea of the law rules about pollution should be more strict. Delegates wrote down their ideas about how they can prevent the pollution and support it with international law. They mostly focused on the regulation about trade ships and found possible solutions like found an new commission which is responsible for water pollution. They ended their session with discussing the sovereignty issue aquifers. // Övgü Nalbantoğlu

SPACE POLLUTION SPECPOL has started today with the agenda about Cooperation Between the United Nations and Security Organizations in Eurasia. After the opening speeches of the delegates, all the representatives agreed on that this committee was vital. Delegates were also agreed that the space pollution and space debris are very important topics and a solution must be found and applied. It is said that legal precautions should be taken in cooperation. Also colonization on Mars has debated. The delegates were really concerned and interested in prohibition of space pollution. // Ece Serpici

UNESCAP

UNESCAP has started today with the agenda about urban poverty and economic inequalities in Asia and Pacific countries. At the first place, delegates had their opening speeches and delegates of different countries have highlighted the vital issues about, income inequalities, education, food, health care and sanitation. Delegates were also agreed that sustainable growth in these countries is vital in order to be able to solve the problems. Delegates were highly interested in raising the awareness on the issue and to find solutions cooperatively. // Bigenaz Doğan

STABILITY ON POLITICS

SOCHUM came up with great discussions and possible solutions. The first session started with the debate about increasing corruption in countries. Delegates covered lots of topics which are; providing security for humanitarian workers, preventing the violation of women in high risk environments, preventing child abuse in high risk environments and suppressing epidemics in high risk environments. Delegate of China suggested that commissions like UNCSW should have more extended and strict rights while the delegate of Denmark blamed Turkey about the countries' law regulations about women. In a different perspective, Delegate of United States of America argued that in order to help the undeveloped countries, the country's politics should have stability. // Övgü Nalbantoğlu

RIGHT TO INFORMATION

Today the delegates delivered their opening speeches, they mentioned the right to information, which in further debates seemed to be supported by all of the delegates. The committee mainly debated upon censorship issues related to government actions to limit the right to information, International Telecommunications Union rules and how to fund the least developed countries for International Communication Technologies. There were possible working papers but the procedural voting phase was controversial and sometimes speeches were slipped into out of topic. Overall, UNHRC delegates were in favor of individuals' right to information and looked for solutions to maintain that right and solve problems that are attached to it. // Ayşe Burcu Ataman

UNDP

UNDP gathered today to discuss on the agenda of the day: The Post-Arab Spring Era. The representatives of countries took the topic in hand and evaluated it under many subtitles. The subtitles were recommended by present states in the Reunion and accepted to be talked over with the voting of states. As to the names of discussion topics, meaning the subtitles, democratic transition, economic aspects, access to the information and media, and social and humanitarian effects were among them. During the discussion period states with various foreign policies expressed their opinions by means of their representatives conflicted in terms of thinking with one another. Afterwards, they started working on working papers and 2 papers were begun to be written regarding solution recommendations of countries over the disputed issues. // Orhun Bayraktar

DISEC

In DISEC topics were discussed conveniently to the Committee's agenda, which is Cooperation Between the United Nations and Security Organizations in Eurasia, were finding possible solutions by establishing a subcommittee under the United Nations with the aim of gun controlling and disarmament. The functions of a potential committee also debated ambitiously. Tension run high between China, Russia and the UK while questioning the establishment of a possible subcommittee. // Ece Serpici

WOMEN RIGHTS

UNCSW has also started in the morning. All delegates have given their opening speeches at the beginning of the committee. Delegates from several countries expressed their worries concerning status of women in the society and problems related to sexual identity. In addition to social problems, they also highlighted the issues related to sexual harassment towards women at war times. There were a lot of note passing during the committee. Remarkable points were sexual abuse of women and violation towards women. Some countries offered education as a solution for previously mentioned problems, however, some countries objected by saying that education is a long term solution but some immediate solutions are required in order to ensure the security of women in world. // Bigenaz Doğan

RUSSIA-TURKEY CRISIS

UNSC started with the delegates' opening speeches. As being one of the most active committees having an open agenda, many issues were tried to be solved. ISIS problem was one of the issues that wanted to be solved however every attempt was interrupted with updates, so no conclusion could be reached. In the last session, the update of Turkish airplane being shot down by Russia had the upmost importance. Following that, the representative of Turkey came to further explain the crisis and to answer the questions of the delegates. The debates were flamed upon whether the world was in the edge of another war and some collaborations formed between countries. The committee ended without reaching a concrete solution for the Russia-Turkey problem on airspace. // Ayşe Burcu Ataman
